

The Banker's Innovation in Banking Technology Awards 2012 is open for entry.

Now in their tenth year, The Banker's prestigious Innovation in Banking Technology Awards seek to identify and celebrate innovation and excellence in all areas of banking technology.

For the first time, in an effort to recognise and reward the entire spectrum of IT services, products, and projects in the financial services industry at large, the awards are now open to entry from technology providers themselves.

Awards in eight newly created categories will be presented to the best software and system provider in each field, as decided by a global survey of banking CIOs and senior technologists to be conducted by The Banker.

CATEGORIES

- Technology Provider of the Year (not open for direct entry)
- Core Banking Technology Provider of the Year
- Risk Management Technology Provider of the Year
- Anti-Fraud/Crime Prevention Technology Provider of the Year
- Trading Technology Provider of the Year
- Post Trade/Back office Technology Provider of the Year
- Data Management Technology Provider of the Year
- Payments Technology Provider of the Year

HOW TO ENTER

To be included in this survey, please complete the entry form with the name and a brief description of the product you wish to be included in the survey, and return it by email to banker.tech@ft.com by March 2nd 2012.

Please note

- (i) Technology products should only be entered into as many categories as are relevant.
- (ii) Some technology products may overlap or encompass different categories but please pick only the most pertinent and do NOT enter the same product into multiple categories.
- (iii) The Technology Provider of the Year category may not be entered directly, but every entrant to other categories will automatically be included for consideration.
